Russell Would Terms Laid Iran Quakes Kill Hundreds Voted 74 To 0 Submit Rights Bill To Voters

Senate Jumps Gun On Debate

WASHINGTON, July 2 (P)-The Senate jumped the gun today on its forthcoming civil rights debate.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga) blasted the House - passed right-to-vote bill, sponsored by the Eisenhower administration, as a device for "bayonet" enforcement of school integration. He urged that the whole measure be submitted to a nationwide popular vote.

Some Northerners scoffed at Russell's impassioned speech. Said Sen. Dirksen (R-III): "Seldom have I seen so many ghosts under a single bed."

The flurry of orations came as Republican Senate Leader Knowland (Calif) told at the White House of plans to bring the civil rights bill up for debate early next week. Southerners, led by Russell, are ready to try talking it retary of the Treasury Humphrey said today an increasing rate of failures among small businessmen is not a danger to the nation's economy and is nothing to worry

Humphrey's testimony brought a charge from Sen. Smathers (D-Fla) that small business will be wiped out "unless the present attitude of indifference" by the Eisenhower administration is changed.

The soon-to-retire Treasury secretary differed frequently with Smathers during his ninth day on the witness stand before the Senate Finance Committee, which is starting a broad inquiry into the country's financial condition. Smathers wanted to know how the rising number of bankruptcies and failures among small businessmen - failures are running 13.6 per cent ahead of last year, according to latest statisticscould be squared with Humphrey's claim of general prosper-

Humphrey said the number of bankruptcies "is still relatively small" and would have to be a good deal larger before he would "get worried" about its effect on

To Smathers' suggestion that small business might be "the modern vanishing American," Humphrey replied: "I don't think so. The total number of businesses is higher than ever before.

Go Fourth --But Safely

Are you a male between the ages of 25 and 44, and are you anticipating a motor trip starting today or tomorrow, with perhaps a short nip for the road in homage to the Fourth? Or in celebration of the four-day weekend ahead of you?

If you fit the description, you have a good chance of not living past the first day.

' This is the prediction of the National Safety Council, which for years has been gathering data on mayhem on American holidays and translating this history into modern day predictions. Unfortunately, the gruesome anticipations of the council are seldom disappointed by a vacationing public determined to outdo all previous holidays or else.

In addition to the above description of the average fatality which can be expected on a four-day weekend, such as the July Fourth holiday, most of the accidents will occur on the first day between the hours of 6 p. m. and 9 p. m.

One hundred and eighty-one years ago a small group of brave men risked their lives to espouse independence and form the foundation upon which this nation has prospered. They accomplished this amazing deed by using the pen and the sword. Their pen produced the Declaration of Independence and the sword has been used many times to protect this great document.

The Fourth of July has become one of the favorite holidays of the American people because it is the anniversary of the birth of this nation. It is traditionally a noisy holiday, as any patriotic holiday must be. But it is a celebration of a beginning, not an ending. For many it will be

On How To Make It Easy

Some months ago I received an interesting and indignant letter from a lady teacher, age 29, who apparently believes that if children hate to learn anything, the teacher should make the dose homeopathic so that the student will somehow get culture. It is an idea, like a salt-free diet which is food too, but whether for man or horse is not stipulated.

This young lady who is earnest and sincere writes: "At . . . Junior High School . . . the music instructor is so outstanding that she can, after working with her students, pretty much judge the abilities of that student. So she re-writes the musical selections to suit the talents of each student, and from that point, works on to the more difficult scores. But she has captured their interest by providing them with an initially successful musical experience.

This is indeed a very good idea, making Mozart and Shostakovich easy for the youngster. Prokofiev did it in "Peter and the Wolfe," after listening to which a child should know the particular characteristic of each musical instrument. However, the maracas, the bongo drums and similar instruments have been omitted by Prokofiev who probably was unacquainted with modified savagery. Perhaps someone will turn Mozart's Symphony No. 40 into calypso and earn a fortune

"Midsummer Night's Dream" could be used because it contains the famous "Wedding March" to which fathers take their daughters to the altar at least for their first marriage. I have heard that bit played in many different arrangements, most of which Mendelssohn could not possibly have recognized.

It would seem to me that the music instructor heretofore described might accomplish as much if instead of re-arranging other men's musical ideas, she wrote some of her own. Nothing is easier. Anyone who can rhyme moon and June, can compose a tune

Contrasting the ease of handling all this by homeopathic doses, my correspondent tells of a musician

"At . . . Junior High School, the instructor had been a first violinist for the Chicago Symphony. He was an expert musician, with the taste and cultural background you feel is so lacking. Unfortunately, however, he had no talent for transmitting his knowledge and talent to the students. You see, contrary to the current popular theory, it takes more than a knowledge of music, science, physics, or anything (sic) other subject matter, to teach it successfully.

Alas! He believed in truth and virtue. He hoped perhaps to produce a George Gershwin. He imagined that out of the hundreds of children who might pass under his tutelage one bright star might emerge, perhaps a Brahms or even a Dimitri Tiomkin. Poor man! He knew his subject but he could not beat it into the brains of the young devils who no longer need to know anything because they can see it on television or hear it in a juke box. So, he failed.

My correspondent is a practical person who honestly tries to give what she gets paid for. She writes me:

"As for me, I was not dedicated enough to invest any of my $175 a month take-home pay in school equipment, since it has always been my philosophy that if the taxpayers prefer to spend more on tobacco, alcohol, movies, and TV sets than on educating their children, I did not intend to spend hours after school or money on school projects. But nevertheless, I tried to spark some interest in music with recordings, stories of the music, and I recall we even acted out a part of Tannhauser. I hoped that perhaps later, when a fragment of something they had heard and become familiar within class, came over the radio, they would say 'Stop' when dad comes roaring over to turn from the symphony to the ball game."

She might have written "Stop, Please!" or "Dad, please let me listen to Wagner. Although he cannot play baseball, he did write some pretty good music which I am just beginning to enjoy. Someday, I shall go to the Metropolitan and listen to 'Parsifal,' and then you will know that I have emerged from my low social status and have become a cultured gentleman."

If pop doesn't wallop him, it is because at a P.T.A. meeting he heard a psychologist say that walloping gives children an inferiority complex and that is why they become juvenile delinquents and rape and murder their classmates.

Steel And Other Price Increases Mean No Tax Reduction Next Year

WASHINGTON - The increase in the price of steel will not be the only one to help hike the cost of living this summer. It will be followed by a chain reaction of price increases, all further decreasing the buying power of the white collar worker, the farmer, the school teacher, the oldster living on a pension, and aryone with a fixed or low in-

Aluminum manufacturers are expected to ask a penny a pound more on Aug. 1, because of a 15-cent-an-hour wage boost. The meat and glass industries will increase prices. The price of men's flannels will go up three cents per pound, ammonia $8 a ton, and the leading TV manufacturers will try to get $20 more

There's already been a lot of agitation about inflation. But you ain't seen nothin' yet.

No Tax Cut In '58

Most important political effect of the increased cost of steel will not be felt until about next January. This is the period when politicians will try to carry out that long awaited promise of a cut in taxes.

They won't admit it, but the inside fact is there will be no tax cut.

The reason is quite simple. The increased price of steel, together with other simultaneous, spiraling prices, will add $4 billion to the budget. This just about absorbs the surplus on which both political parties based their promise of a tax cut

It is no secret that the biggest bill Uncle Sam has to pay is for military hardware. This is the term given battleships, submarines, tanks, armored cars, trucks, and guns. So when the price of steel goes up, the man feels it most is the Uncle who has to pay for this hardware.

There's another reason why there will be no tax cut. In addition to the $4 billion extra for hardware, another extra billion will be added to the expense of government because of higher interest rates. Uncle Sam will pay that extra billion just to borrow money.

Messrs. Humphrey and Burgess have hiked the interest rate on government bonds to the highest point since the depression, with the result that interest on the national debt is also at an all-time high.

Ike Gets Kicked

Twice President Eisenhower has appealed to business and labor to hold down prices and wages, and each time he has been promptly kicked in the teeth by the big business leaders who did so much to elect him. Here are KICK NO. 1 came just before and after Feb. 6 when the President publicly stated: "When I said business and labor must exercise and must discharge their authority in conformity with the needs of the United States, I wasn't merely asking them to be altruistic. Their long term good is involved, and I am asking them merely to act as enlightened Americans.

"Unless this happens, the United States then has to move in more firmly with so-called controls of some kind.

This got a private horse laugh from business. Reason was that next day, Ike's own Secretary of Commerce, Sinclair Weeks, himself a big businessman, figuratively kicked his boss in the teeth. He stated at his press conference that the Administration was not considering wage and price controls at all. The President had warned business and labor that unless they held down inflation "The United States has to move in more firmly with so-called controls." He did this for the obvious purpose of trying to get business to stop inflation.

Whereupon the man in charge of his business policy cut the ground right out from under his own President.

KICK NO. 2 came from another big businessman, James

Zellerbach, to whom Ike had given an important diplomatic plum -the ambassadorship to Italy. As Zellerbach took his post, he increased the price of paper sold by his Crown Zellerbach Company. This hit newspapers and magazines all over the na-

Simultaneously, Crown Zellerbach announced: "The most successful year in the company's 86-year history." Profits went up 13.4 per cent over the preceding year. Despite this and despite Ike's appeal to stop inflation, his own ambassador brazenly added to inflation

KICK NO. 3 came last week when the giant U.S. Steel Company jacked up its prices just one day after the President again appealed to keep prices

Behind The Horse Laugh

There's an interesting reason for the business horse laughs regarding the President's warnings. They figure he doesn't really mean them, that he has no idea of ever getting tough. They base this not only on the Sinclair Weeks denial but on the well-known Eisenhower policy of 'reward your opponents.

For instance, business leaders all knew that Eisenhower did nothing about Zellerbach's price increase - except continue him in the choice reward of ambassador to Italy. They also knew that Ben Fairless, chief power behind U.S. Steel for years, had been rewarded by Ike. He was appointed Coordinator of the President's Citizen Advisers on the Mutual Security Program.

For several weeks it was known that U.S. Steel was going to hike prices on July 1. It had been printed in the trade press and was reported by this writer. Obviously the White House knew it. But no heat was applied to Ben Fairless and other steel moguls, most of them heavy contributors to the Eisenhower election campaign. Technically Ben Fairless is out of the steel corporation, but he still exercises potent influence.

So business leaders, watching the Eisenhower policy of sweetness and light, go blithely on their price-raising way.

NOTE-In his last press conference, the President reversed his Feb. 6 warning that there might be wage and price controls. He said controls were the way to bring the socialism which Khrushchev predicted for the USA. Many economists say that uncontrolled inflation is a quicker way to bring it. Inflation has already brought socialism to a good part of Europe.

DAUGHTERS

Daughters are, of course, more expensive to rear than sons. However, some fathers are now getting a break in the matter of the cost of rearing a female. Some daughters, who are working girls, are paying most of the expenses of their weddings. It is said the working girl bride contributes an average of $1,000 to her wedding expenses. She willingly pays this to have an outstanding wedding. Her contribution takes care of the reception, photos, flowers and linens.

HORSES AND WOMEN

A Brooklynite says his wife's measurements are 38-26-36. Her height is five feet, six, her weight 133 pounds. "How does she shape for a Mrs. America candidate?" he asks. The lady appears a likely candidate insofar as measurements are concerned. To be well streamlined a woman's waistline measurement should be from nine to eleven inches less than that of the bust. The hip measurement should not be two inches more than the bust. As for weight, that depends on figure frame which is classed as slight, medium or large. For a woman five feet, six in height this ranges from 132 pounds to 140 pounds. Or, so claim the experts on "Mrs. America" ma-

Cards of Thanks We desire to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives, who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband, father, son and brother Donald Frye. We especially wish to thank the Doctors and Nurses at Memorial Hospital, the employees and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, those who sent cards, the pallbearers, those who donated floral tributes and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral. To all others who in any manner rendered assistance, we are We desire to express our sincere rendered assistance, we are indeed grateful. City Water Unit Makes Study Of Flat Rate Users

Some Bills Boosted As Result Of Check

A survey of all customers who buy water on flat rates has been completed by the Water Department, according to Commissioner William J. Edwards.

The two-year task has been completed by personnel of the Water Department as a water conservation measure.

A number of water users, Mr. Edwards said, have received increased bills as a result of the survey, although water rates have not changed since July 1.

As the survey ended, the City of Cumberland had 10,038 domestic customers, including 1,548 who purchase water on flat

The survey, Mr. Edwards said, disclosed that additional outlets, upon which flat rates are based, had been added by the custom-

Since the 1955 rate increase, officials said, many flat rate water users have availed themselves of metered service and the same relief is available to all,

The metered service was requested by many users two years ago after flat rates were boosted 50 per cent while metered service in the city went up 20 per cent and outside the city limits by 331/3 per cent.

It is to the advantage of all water users, officials said, to change to metered service.
